Murphy's Murder Confession

TAKEN

First Announcement of Totals
Shown by American Pneumatic List

Detailed information regarding the stolen securities valued at $225,450 were stolen from a safe in the offices of the American Pneumatic Service Company in the Colonial Building between Thursday, April 15, and Wednesday, April 21.

It was announced that a reward of $10,000 would be paid to the company for the return of the securities.

The reward, which is officially announced by the Pinkerton National Detective Agency in circular sent to all its branches, is payable in the event of a proportion of the value of the securities being returned. Part of the reward will be paid to the Pinkerton American Agency.

An exclusive announcement of the value of the property stolen was made more than ten days ago. It was stated that the value of the stolen securities amounted to $192,000.

President Oliver L. Clapp said that the value of the property stolen might be more than $192,000.

It was stated that the value of the stolen securities might be the value of the stolen securities.

Added in the stolen bonds are twenty Victoria Bonds, valued at $10,000.

AGED WOMAN SEEKS RELEASE

Charge Minister Helped Wrongfully to Confine Her in Insane Asylum

Charges involving the alleged raiding of an aged woman into an insane asylum and the conversion of her property, are made against her by her son, Mr. J. H. Worcester, and Walter C. Hayward of the same city, in a writ of habeas corpus filed in the Supreme Court.

This writ, which is returnable Tuesday, May 11, was filed by James H. Worcester, counsel for Mrs. Mary B. Rice of Worcester, now an inmate of the Heriot Hall Hospital, from which he seeks her release.

According to the writ, the petitioner, who is about eighty years old, was illegally committed to the insane hospital, shortly after the death of her son, Franklin Pierce Rice.

On January 8, 1919, on the plea that Mrs. Rice needed a few days rest following her son's funeral, the Rev. Mr. Rice, according to the petition, "induced her by false and fraudulent representations to go to the Heriot Hall Hospital in Worcester."

Soon after, it is alleged, he wrongfully "affixed the signature of your petitioner to two petitions, one for the administration of the estate of her son, Franklin Pierce Rice of Worcester County, and the other for the administration of the estate of her son, Franklin Pierce Rice of Worcester County, both of which were filed in Worcester County Probate Court."

Both of these petitions were said to have been granted, and the Rev. Mr. Rice was charged with attempting to function at the present time in the dual capacity of administrator of the estate of Franklin Rice, or which the petitioner is the sole heir and as the conservator of her property.

A short time later Mrs. Rice is alleged to have called for the removal of Mrs. Rice to the Heriot Hall Hospital as an insane person and in the meantime, it is charged, the defendant has become possessed of her property and converted the same to his own use.

The petitioner claims that the original order of commitment was illegal, in that it does not appear that she had notice of a hearing for her commitment or opportunity to be heard in her own defense. It further does not show that the petitioner was not examined by the magistrate who committed her, and that the statements made by the medical examiners in their certificates justifying the order of commitment do not in any way indicate insanity.

NEW SEARCH IN EKLUND CASE

Police Take Fingerprints of All Arrested in Search for Chauffeur's Slayers

Providence, R. I., May 4.—Believing there are characters in this city who reveal the identity of the slayers of Oliver Eklund, a roundup by the police of all suspicious persons and underworld denizens is in progress. Finger prints of all those arrested are being taken.

The authorities are visiting pool rooms, cafes, billiard parlors, and other resorts known to be frequented by gangsters and men of bad repute.

Following the taking of the finger prints, which will be compared with those left upon the "death car" by the two men who murdered Eklund in Taunton, Mass., each suspect will be subjected to a rigid examination by the police.

Police Comb South End for Eklund Slayers

The Boston police are combing the South End today for the two men who murdered Oliver Eklund of Providence, in Taunton, and later abandoned the slain youth's machine in Dorchester, Lower Mills.

The South End activities of the police are the result of the testimony of Conductor John Kelly of the Boston Elevated, who claims that two men answering the description of the Eklund slayers rode on his car the night of the murder from Milton.

Conductor Kelly states that one alighted from the trolley at Northampton street, the other got off at Kewland street. Kelly told his story to the police the day following the murder, but little attention was paid to it at the time because the authorities did not think the men would remain in Dorchester for nearly two hours after abandoning the blood-stained auto.

Eklund Buried From Home of His Mother

Providence, May 4.—My brother's murderers will be found and brought to judgment.

This was the prophetic statement of Irving Eklund, as the body of his brother Oliver Eklund, was laid to rest today.

The brother of the murdered chauffeur, whose lifeless body was discovered in a pool near the Taunton Fair grounds after a week's search, was confident that the slayers would be apprehended within the next few days.

"A police inspector told me that he had a feeling that he was going to 'get' those fellows," said Eklund. "I'm just the way I feel."

The funeral was from the home of Eklund's mother, at No. 18 Laura street. Flowers were received from all over the city, from the homes of his associates in the taxi business, and from the mansions of local millionaires.

Passing runs high over the murder of the chauffeur. He was a world war veteran with a particularly good record, and his conduct toward his mother raised him further in the esteem of his neighbors.

250 FACTORY AUTOS

DRIVEN OVER ROAD

Lenox, May 4.—Two hundred and fifty automobiles passed through here from Detroit and Cleveland to ride water in Boston. Driving and riding in seventy-five machines were 131 twelvemile from the Middle West, who were taking their wedding trip and incidentally the husband was earning all of the expenses incident to the trip.

BEAUTY CONTEST IN SOUTH BOSTON TONIGHT

A May party and benefit ball will be held tonight at St. Augustine's Hall, E street, South Boston, in aid of the new New Haven Centre. A feature will be the dancing of the ten prettiest girls in South Boston.

AUTO TRUCK KILLED BOY. ARREST WARRANT DENIED

COAL HANDLERS OF WESTFIELD ON STRIKE

Westfield, May 4.—Coal handlers have struck for 12 per day with Sunday afternoons off during May, June, July and August. The dealers have offered the men $4.50 with Sunday afternoons off during July and August.

CHILDREN MOURN FOR THEIR MISSING MOTHER

Four little children and a heartbroken father in New Bedford are mourning the disappearance of the mother and wife, Mrs. Virginia Sylvia, who left her home eight days ago, leaving no trace. The husband, Frank M. Sylvia, has written to the American asking his aid. The children range in age from nine years to two years and eight months. "We had been married ten years and had a happy home," writes the father. "Tuesday, April 27, my wife left, never to return. I am heartbroken and have not worked since she left. The three oldest children are always asking if 'Mamma' is home and when she is coming. My dear is always open waiting to welcome her back."

BANKS REFUSE INTEREST ON NORTH ADAMS FUNDS

North Adams, May 4.—As a result of failure of local banks to pay interest on the city's daily balances, which results in an estimated loss of thousands of dollars, the subject is to be brought before the City Council for discussion. The council expects to issue an order calling upon the banks to pay interest on such sums.

A Million Dollars for a Cup of Tea

Nimble fingers of women and children pluck the tender, young leaves of the tea plant and place them in baskets which they carry on their backs.

The tea leaves are despatched in bags to the factory for weighing, sorting and the various processes of curing.

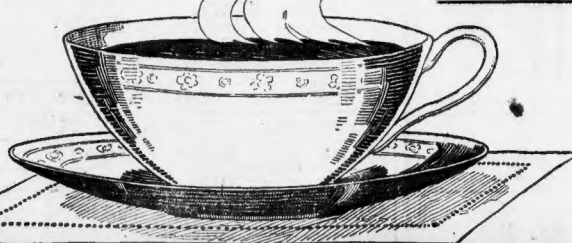

Ox-drawn wagons leaving the Lipton Tea Factory on the Laymaslote Estate, Ceylon, carrying chests of cured tea to the docks for shipment.

Barges loading Lipton's Tea aboard ship. The tea is enclosed in large lead-lined chests to preserve its freshness and flavor on the 8,000 mile sea voyage to America.

The great Lipton warehouse in Hoboken where the tea is blended and sealed in the well-known flavor-retaining packages. It is then despatched by train to the big cities where Lipton distributing depots are located and from which your grocer obtains his stock of fresh, fragrant Lipton's Tea, which has won through its quality and flavor THE LARGEST SALE IN THE WORLD.

Lipton Golden Tips Tea has been sold in Mining Lane, London, the greatest tea market in the world, at 33 guineas (equal to $132) a pound.

The story of a great planter's determination to give the world a perfect product.

WHEN Sir Thomas Lipton entered the business of growing his own tea he gave one order to his employees:

"I want the best tea that can be produced. It's your work to produce that kind. If you have to spend a million dollars to get it, do so. Remember, the best tea and nothing short of that! Nothing else counts."

Money was freely spent to get definite quality results before the first tea was marketed. Standards of growing, picking, curing, shipping and packing were established so that uniformity would be certain, and those standards were highly expensive; but they have been justified because more Lipton's Tea is consumed today than any other brand.

Down at the apex of India lies the Island of Ceylon; the magic island where the finest tea on earth is grown. And far up on the slopes of the Ceylon hills lie the vast Lipton Tea gardens. They are on the hillside because the best tea is produced at higher altitudes, and the Lipton order was, you will remember, "The best tea."

Only the young and tender leaves at the top of the tea plant are used for Lipton's Tea. Native women and children do the picking, dropping the new leaves into the baskets they carry on their backs. From the baskets the young leaves reach the light, airy factories, situated on the bank of a swift stream, and are laid out in the vast withering lofts.

The best tea needs twelve hours for preparation for the rollers which turn the leaves hour after hour until they are well twisted. Then they are sifted into grades and spread in a great, cool room to ferment.

A large part of the outlay for experimentation was devoted to determining the exact point at which curing must stop to keep the delicate aroma which is the feature of the Lipton Tea. The utmost care and accuracy are required up to the point where the leaves are placed on the fine wire mesh trays and "fired" to seal up that aroma.

Packed in large, lead-lined chests, the tea is transported either by elephants or ox teams to the docks, and there loaded into the ships that carry it to every quarter of the globe where great Lipton warehouses are situated.

It was in the warehouses that most of the experimental fund was expended to find the exact sorting and blending that produces the acme of tea perfection—the flavor. That flavor was found, and you get it in every cup of Lipton's Tea—"a million dollar flavor!"

Sealed in the well-known flavor-retaining package, Lipton's Tea reaches your table generally within ten weeks from the time it was picked in Ceylon, 8000 miles away.

The perfection you enjoy in your cup is no mere accident; no occasional experience, but the result of long, intelligent planning, and the expenditure of a vast sum of money—money spent to carry out the orders of the great tea merchant who said:

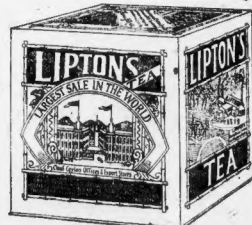

"The best tea. Nothing else counts!"

The pride of the maker finds no higher expression than his name on the package. Look for the signature of Sir Thomas J. Lipton on every package of tea you buy.

How to Gain Flesh

A simple but sure way to increase the weight, it is asserted by several well-known physicians, is to take regularly for several months one or two 5-cent grape-nutrient tablets after each meal. These little tablets have the ability to build up the system, increase the blood, and promote digestion and assimilation of food. They are obtainable in sealed packages from mail-order, specialty shops—everywhere.

SEEKS PEACE WITH A. F. OF L.

American Labor Party Ready to Join "Regulars" in Coming Campaign

Washington, May 4.—The Chicago Federation of Labor, chief backer of the American Labor party, has extended the olive branch of peace to the non-partisan political campaign committee of the American Federation of Labor.

This and other recent developments lend credence to talk here that the party will abandon its program for independent activities in the coming campaign, joining forces with the American Federation of Labor and the "Big Four" railroad brotherhoods in order that organized labor may present a united front in what is regarded as the most critical period in its history, and may present a united front at the polls to down all anti-labor candidates for Congress. The party may go on with its plans to hold a national convention in Chicago in July, but may do nothing more than convene.

Samuel Gompers has named Matthew Wolf, eighth vice-president of the American Federation, and George Perkins, president of the International Cigar Makers Union, "peace envoys" to "treat" with similar emissaries from the Chicago Federation.

RAILS ADVANCE IN BOSTON

Local Market Strong at Opening and All the Morning; Curb Is Lethargic

Strength featured the Boston market during the morning, most of the time advancing at the opening and the later movement being upward in general. North Boston was among the most active movements, and among the strongest as well. The market was rather dull and with not anything outstanding in the afternoon. Prices have been rather steady in the early trading. Copper was irregular.

SALT CREEK PRODUCERS

The incongruity of market action based against present actual production coupled with startling potential possibilities, is exciting unusual comment among many of the shrewdest oil investors.

We have prepared a special article dealing with the situation.

Measures That Would Cure Most of the Troubles and Tendencies Which Distress and Alarm Us today

- (1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
- (2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
- (3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put public offices as nearly

- as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
- (4) To elect Federal Judges, including Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
- (5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall national matters.

Hissing Woll Off Platform
Was Neither Good Sense
Nor Good Manners

Matthew Woll addressed the members of the United States Chamber of Commerce at Atlantic City last Thursday, and attempted to argue against the Kansas compulsory labor law. The members hissed Woll off the platform.

We are sorry that this intolerance is increasing in our America. We are doubly sorry that such high grade American business men should so exhibit this intolerance.

It doesn't make a particle of difference whether Mr. Woll is right or wrong in his opinion of the Kansas law.

The point is that in this country every man is entitled to his own opinion, right or wrong, and entitled to a fair hearing of his reasons for his belief.

The very essence of republican freedom is tolerance of discussion.

It is ridiculous to brag about making the world safe for democracy in the same breath that the fundamental basis of democracy, which is freedom of speech and opinion, is angrily denied.

Mr. Woll is vice-president of the American Federation of Labor. He represents nearly four million workmen and women. They all feel as he does about the Kansas labor law.

Now, assume, that they are mistaken. Are they going to be convinced that they are mistaken by hissing their representative and refusing to HEAR the reasons why they fear and oppose the Kansas labor law?

Can't anyone see that that sort of treatment will not only strengthen the working people's opposition to the Kansas law, but will also add fuel to the fire of their suspicion and discontent, and make more effective the argument of the extremists that working folks have NO CHANCE TO BE HEARD IN AN ORDERLY WAY, and that violence and terror are the ONLY arguments to which their masters will listen?

This spirit of intolerance made reasonable discussion impossible during the war, and was responsible for most of the vast waste and grafting, hidden under the disguise of "patriotism."

This same spirit of intolerance makes it difficult and costly to tell the truth and to give good and useful counsel in the press.

And this same spirit of intolerance daily widens the cleavage between groups of Americans and increases the class feeling, which, whenever it comes to full stature in any country, inevitably results in industrial, social and political warfare that is injurious to every citizen, to every industry and to the country.

Whenever the working people are satisfied that their attempts to ARGUE will be met only with hisses and refusals to hear them they will cease to rely upon argument and begin to look around for more DANGEROUS means to make themselves heard.

"The seed of revolution is repression," said Mr. Wilson in one of those remarkable utterances which he has so regularly contradicted by his performances.

There is not the slightest danger of revolution in this country NOW.

But a few more years of the repressive and tyrannical methods now practiced by the Palmers, Sweets, Luks and all that sort, and of the intolerance so unfortunately manifested by the United States Chamber of Commerce at Atlantic City, and of the intolerance and unlawful violence practiced elsewhere by different so-called "patriotic" societies, may breed a revolution.

The sensible and really patriotic American is the man who has his own convictions, who upholds them stoutly, and who at the same time listens candidly to the convictions upheld by others; and who cheerfully grants, and is always ready to defend, the right of difference in opinion and the inalienable right of free and open expression of that difference in opinion.

We really think that the United States Chamber of Commerce would do the right and sensible thing, as well as the patriotically American thing, in apologizing to Mr. Woll and in inviting him to address them again in support of the views held by the millions of workers he represents.

Even the Government Did Not Escape Coal Profiteers

The profiteers never sleep. They work fast and furiously, day and night. Up to the first of April the prices of coal were fixed by the Fuel Administration.

But before the clock could strike twelve on March 31 new and higher prices had been put into force. The Government, which a few days before was the dictator of coal prices, was among the very first to feel the demands of the Coal Trust for more profits.

Bids were asked by the Navy Department for two million tons of bituminous and sixty thousand tons of anthracite. The bids received on 470,000 tons of bituminous and 25,000 tons of anthracite contained prices ranging from 9 cents to $1.42 a ton more than the Fuel Administration prices of a few days before.

And added to these advances was the advice to buy quickly, as the prospects were for much higher prices.

If asked the reasons for the present advance and the prospective increases, the coal barons point to wage increases, foreign demand, lowered production and shortage of cars. Government statistics do not bear out these claims. Mr. McAdoo, who as Secretary of the Treasury, ought to know, recently referred in a public letter to coal mine owners whose profits had increased 1,000 per cent. as shown by their books.

It is a strange net with which the Government is fishing for profiteers.

A few little fish get caught, but the big ones either go through the net or around it.

If fish laugh, and it is certain that some varieties do, there must be many a loud "Haw-haw" as the coal sharks tell how they are able to hold up, not only the people, but the Government itself.

More Truth Than Poetry

Of the People and by the People

By S. E. KISER

FOLKS, cheer up, a change is coming and we won't have long to wait;

Adam Skinner's been selected as our district delegate; Go in to the big convention, Adam, and when he's there He'll have some things to mention that'll mellow curl their hair.

Adam hasn't made no secret of the things he's got in mind, So we'll soon leave all our troubles scattered on the road behind.

ADAM says the good old dollar must be worth a hundred cents;

He's for prices that are fairer and reduction in rents. "I'm agin all profiteerin'," Adam told us Monday night. And you oughta heard the cheerin'! You'da tingled with delight.

"Let's git back to sense and reason"—them were Adam's very words.

"We have all been too darned busy throwin' money at the birds."

GIVE the boys that done the fightin' what they ought to have," says he.

"And the preachers and the teachers need more pay, it seems to me; Freedom's got to be protected, that's my platform, plain and flat.

And the man that gets elected has to show us where he's at! He must beat the combinations and break up the wicked pools.

For the people ain't no longer to be looked upon as fools!"

FOLKS, it's time to be encouraged; Adam Skinner's made it clear That a better time is comin', and it's almost nearly here. It is Adam's firm intention to rise up and let 'em know.

When he reaches the convention, just how fur they've got to go;

So there's no use lein' worried; he will hand it to 'em straight.

And it's mighty lucky Adam is to be a delegate.

AIR WHEN
IN SMALL SPACE

By Garrett P. Serviss

"How is it that a cylinder four feet high and ten inches in diameter can hold 4,000 gallons of oxygen, which denser air, when they say air takes space—H. S."

I WONDER whether you know that the air you breathe, and which keeps you alive, in an unwinding prisoner, straining like a wild animal at his leash, and that it would crush almost instantaneously and leave us gasping if our good old mother earth should relax her grasp upon it or have a gravitational faint.

That fact, whether you know it or not, contains the answer to your question and to many other more important questions. Air would indeed "take space," in another sense, if it were not forcibly restrained. To see how this is you must know the nature of a gas, such as oxygen, or atmospheric air. A gas is about the liveliest thing in existence. It consists of countless multitudes of invisible molecules, endowed with swift and incessant motion.

The particles of a gas are subject to the attraction of gravitation, and when they are in the presence of a very large, massive body like the earth they feel the restraint of its attraction and are drawn toward it and held around it, provided that its force of attraction is sufficient to so far overcome their free molecular motion that they can no longer get completely away, but must come back again and again like a stone thrown upward or like a pendulum bob returning.

The density of the atmosphere and of every gas thus held to the earth depends upon the force with which gravity compresses the gaseous molecules, i. e., compels them to remain more or less close together instead of flying freely away. It depends to some degree also upon the temperature, because when a gas is heated the motion of its molecules is accelerated.

Now, when your dentist's oxygen was measured at 4,000 gallons, it had the degree of density imposed by the simple compressive force of the earth's gravity. But when, by mechanical force, it was driven into the metal cylinder, its density was increased in proportion as its volume was diminished, and the number of molecules contained in every cubic inch of space was also increased, so that the molecular motions were put under far greater restraint than they suffered when controlled by gravity alone.

A reader sends this note: "Many people think that Hiram Johnson who is running for the presidency has the same as 'Pawnee' Johnson. Please write an editorial explaining the difference."

Evidently the orator was right.

A young athlete, formerly of Yale, but that he would run up the steps of a building forty stories high in fifteen minutes. There were eight hundred men in the staircase of the forty stories, plus the length of the landings, there were nine hundred seconds in fifteen minutes. Therefore he had a little more than one second for each step. There was no reason why his heart, criminally and outrageously illustrated, should not win the bet for him.

If the young man could have seen his heart, watch it work as he went up the clock tower steps, and if he could have seen himself as others will see him later, when his ill-used heart refuses to work, he would find more sensible ways of discharging himself.

Young men and old men ought to know that any fool can abuse his heart and make it do wonders. No man should be fool enough to do it.

Long, hard races, especially those in which young boys are permitted to take part, prove a ruin and ruin many constitutions.

What is the use of racing human beings, worth at least ten thousand dollars each as working machines, when you can buy an automobile for one-tenth of the money that it will cost to run?

Two-legged racing had its place in ancient Greece and elsewhere when the first automobile was run. It has no longer any place.

Mr. Debs, now in a Federal prison, is to be the Socialist candidate for President. A wise government would isolate Europe, and release such a man from our shores. He has talked foolishly in the war. He certainly didn't keep us out of the war, for we are not out of it yet, and apparently cannot get out of it.

MY DEAR Charlie.
AND JAKE.
FOR MANY days
I'VE BEEN running around.
IN ANSWER to ads.
OF APARTMENTS to let.
AS I stood up there.
AND I'VE found me one
AND I'M moving in.
AND YESTERDAY.
TO MY great surprise.
AND UNBOUNDED joy.
I MADE the discovery.
THAT THREE blocks away.
FROM WHERE I'll live.
LIE THE Polo Grounds.
AND, OF course, I know.
THAT IT'S nothing to you.
IF I live up there.
OR WHERE I live.
OR WHETHER I live.
OR ANYTHING.
BUT, ANYHOW, Charlie.
AND ANYHOW, Jake.
IT CAME to me.
AS I stood on the corner.
AND LOOKED at the roof.
OF THE big grandstand.
THAT FATE had come.
WITH ITS gutting hand.
AND HAD led me there.
TO MY live light rooms.
AND MY full-length bath.
AND HAD said to me.
"ON EVERY day.

Voters Powerless

Editor Boston American:

Never until the primaries, when I tried to devise some way of showing my preference for Hiram Johnson, did I realize how powerless the voters of Massachusetts are in such matters. In my district there were no candidates pledged to the support of Johnson, and I was obliged either to vote for delegates pledged to Wood, or for unpledged delegates who might support whomever they pleased. Neither than be a party to such an unjust state of affairs. I thought it was better not to vote at all than to vote for something I didn't want. And I know of many other Johnson adherents who followed the same course. It seems ridiculous that in an enlightened commonwealth like ours voters cannot express their preference for presidential candidates directly instead of through the medium of delegates who may (and generally do) oppose the popular will.

Arrest of "Reds"

Editor Boston American:

You have done good work in commencing editorially on Judge Anderson's attitude toward the Department of Justice, the under-privileged and the victims of the malpractices of those unscrupulous agents of a democratic government. Why stop at that?

If those people were arrested and prosecuted for no cause, why should not they be compensated for this false arrest, and why should not those informants or spies be exposed?

Two Breakfasts a Week
Fewer Breakfasts Later
Don't Mix the Johnsons
Spare Your Heart

By Arthur Brisbane

News that will interest men and women, is Fanny Hurst's announcement of her "trial marriage" with Jacques S. Danielson, and her "two breakfasts per week plan."

All through the ages there have been trial marriages, most of them rather trying for the wife. Our ancestor of the stone age married a young woman. When she got a little wild he married another. Later he had two old wives hitched to the plow made of a sharp piece of wood, the latest young wife holding the plow and driving the two old wives. An interesting picture of that is in Reclus' book "Man and the Earth."

Solomon tried an experiment with thousands of wives and concubines. Whether he breakfasted with all or none of them we don't exactly know.

Miss Hurst has a theory that too many breakfasts spoil the marriage. She and her husband live apart, send notes when they want to see each other, and meet for breakfast about twice a week.

The announcement of a wedding seems to indicate that in the latest trial marriage the husband is on trial. That's an improvement on the old system.

Just how it may work out with genius, like Miss Hurst, author, and Mr. Danielson, musician, is not for ordinary mortals to say.

It may be that to have breakfast only twice a week with your husband, if you happen to be a genius, is wise. We should say that two breakfasts with Cleopatra would be plenty.

For the ordinary mortal it would mean that breakfast would grow fewer and fewer as time went by.

With ordinary human beings, it is the breakfast every morning, dinner every night, the feeding of one person at least will always be there and always reliable that makes married life worth while.

When Burns wrote "John Anderson," he did not write "John Anderson, my jo, John, when we were first acquainted, We breakfasted twice a week together."

And skipped the other five days." John and his wife went up the hill when his locks were like the raven, and they went down the hill when his locks were "like the snow," and they slept together at the bottom of the hill when it was all over.

That sounds very old-fashioned, but it will still be the fashion ten thousand years from now. One thing worth while is the absolute confidence of one other human being. Two breakfasts a week won't get it for you.

A famous orator asked to put in a few words the secret of his success said: "Remember that you cannot possibly exaggerate the amount of love the public, and you will have no trouble." He meant that you must make things very plain to the public to be understood.

A reader sends this note: "Many people think that Hiram Johnson who is running for the presidency has the same as 'Pawnee' Johnson. Please write an editorial explaining the difference."

Evidently the orator was right.

A young athlete, formerly of Yale, but that he would run up the steps of a building forty stories high in fifteen minutes. There were eight hundred men in the staircase of the forty stories, plus the length of the landings, there were nine hundred seconds in fifteen minutes. Therefore he had a little more than one second for each step. There was no reason why his heart, criminally and outrageously illustrated, should not win the bet for him.

If the young man could have seen his heart, watch it work as he went up the clock tower steps, and if he could have seen himself as others will see him later, when his ill-used heart refuses to work, he would find more sensible ways of discharging himself.

Young men and old men ought to know that any fool can abuse his heart and make it do wonders. No man should be fool enough to do it.

Long, hard races, especially those in which young boys are permitted to take part, prove a ruin and ruin many constitutions.

What is the use of racing human beings, worth at least ten thousand dollars each as working machines, when you can buy an automobile for one-tenth of the money that it will cost to run?

Two-legged racing had its place in ancient Greece and elsewhere when the first automobile was run. It has no longer any place.

Mr. Debs, now in a Federal prison, is to be the Socialist candidate for President. A wise government would isolate Europe, and release such a man from our shores. He has talked foolishly in the war. He certainly didn't keep us out of the war, for we are not out of it yet, and apparently cannot get out of it.
